Day 1. We will collect you at Malaga airport on your arrival and time permitting we will start your Andalusian experience with a visit to the mountain town of Mijas, one of the most famous 'Pueblos Blancos', (white towns), in Andalusia. Later we will transport you to your accommodation at Villa Samuel, aiming to arrive there at around 6pm.

Day 2. We will collect you after breakfast at 9.00am and head off to visit the romantic city of Cordoba, the centre of the Moorish empire of Al-Andalus for more than 300 years. A city that was a beacon of light during the troubled medieval times and where peoples of all faiths and backgrounds lived in harmony. We will park our vehicle fifty metres from the medieval walls of the city and enter in the historic part through the ancient 'Seville Gate'.

The jewel in the crown of Cordoba is of course the incredible World Heritage site of the Mezquita, the 500 year old Cathedral built inside a 1200 year old Mosque, but during our morning walking tour you will also have the opportunity to visit other impressive sites such as the 14th century Alcazar of the Christian Monarchs, (infamously used as the headquarters of the Spanish Inquisition from 1482), the Royal Stables, (now the home of the famous 'Passion and Spirit' Andalusian Equestrian Stable), the 14th century Synagogue, (one of only three medieval Synagogues left in Spain) and the early 15th Century Chapel of Saint Bartholomew, built in the Mudejar style.

Once we have enjoyed lunch, we will take the short drive to visit the town of Ronda itself.

Ronda is spectacularly set high above the Guadalevin gorge with the hills of the Serrania de Ronda as its backdrop, but Ronda is more than a picture postcard town, it is a place steeped in history, its very name being an adaptation of the name given to the site by the ancient Celts who settled there in the 6th century BC, Arunda.

Ronda is also the birthplace of modern-day bull fighting and has beguiled many a famous traveller, including Orson Welles and Ernest Hemingway, as well as the famous 20th century German poet, Rainer Maria Rilke, who were all seduced by the beauty and history of this town. Hemingway is said to have been inspired by the famous Puente Nuevo, (New Bridge), in Ronda when writing his account of Spanish Civil War atrocities in his book, For Whom the Bell Tolls. Ronda is the perfect Andalucian town to explore at your own pace.

On arriving at Ronda, we will take the short walk to the historic centre of the town where after which you will have free time to visit the museums and sights and choose one of the many quality restaurants to have lunch.
